DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

In my opinion, people are not liking the outcomes because since there are so many people in this country, any outcome could negatively affect a group of people. Also, I think citizens want the outcomes to be what they want. That's why I think many people are protesting and causing destruction amongst each other. The country might figuratively split because many people have different views and opinions. For example, a Hispanic person might not want to see an Arabian near them because Arabian people have a history of terrorism, but that doesn't mean that all Arabians do that. This could cause conflict between the two groups. I think that people should go back to peaceful protests and official petitions to show that they want a change, because shattering windows and injuring others just makes the country break up figuratively, and get destroyed literally.
